

3 Steps to Prepare for the Next Election

A tribal leader's guide to protecting voting rights

If your community would benefit from an on-reservation voting site, you can and should submit a request to state election offices now. See tribal leader guides at <https://vote.narf.org/advocacy-actions/>

1

2

Across Indian Country, homes do not have addresses, making it hard to register and vote. Tribes may be able to help by issuing letters as proof of address. Long-term solutions include addressing homes compliant with USPS guidelines. See addressing guide at: <https://vote.narf.org/advocacy-actions/>

Request local Indian Health Service provide voter registration services to increase registration rates among tribal members. For tribes that 638 compact health services, health facilities can become National Voter Registration Act designated sites. If interested, contact vote@narf.org

3

Learn more about common problems faced by Native communities—and their solutions—in our report, Obstacles at Every Turn. Available at <https://vote.narf.org/obstacles-at-every-turn/>

We are here to help.
Visit vote.narf.org to get voter guides and tools and if you need help, contact us at vote@narf.org

